

Special Alternative Occupation Double Issue 2008

Communication No. 286/287

The Pleasant Places of Florida

From the Papers on the Sundial:

For this issue, we wondered what might happen if Mr. Holmes and some of the other characters could not get a job in their original lines of work. We thought the combinations were just too much to resist.

Since this is our last issue of the year, we wish everyone a happy and prosperous new year. Be safe.

Dear Lestrade

Dear Lestrade,

I'm afraid that my husband is cheating on me. His business takes him out of town on long trips. I have found lipstick smears on his collars and blonde hairs on the shoulders of his jackets—and I am a brunette.

What am I to do?

Concerned in Kent

Dear Lestrade,

I am afraid that some of my documents have been stolen. The safe in my office was open and there were chisel marks around the latch. The papers were ever so important, and I cannot involve Scotland Yard.

What am I to do?

Panicked in Portsmouth

Dear Concerned,

Do not jump to conclusions. The smears are probably paraffin and the hairs more than likely belong to a friendly dog. I am sure that everything is just fine.

Dear Panicked,

Calm down. You have probably just misplaced the papers. Some safes come with the marks already on them—you have just forgotten about them. Everything is just fine.
